FLORIDA Luxury REALTY

DISCUSSION TIME

Open Floor

Your day-to-day, your questions, and one thing worth knowing.

SHARE

A situation you are in

Tell us what is happening with a deal, a client or a listing. We will work it through together.

ASK

A question you have

Anything from your day-to-day: contracts, tools, process or a tough conversation.

BROKER'S CORNER

Something worth your time

A support scenario, industry news or another story that may not match today's topic.

LET'S START HERE

A seller says, "Let's wait until January." A buyer says, "After the holidays."

What do you say?

Bring a real client, no names, and leave with words you can use today.

TODAY'S OUTCOME

Leave with a plan through December 31

01

Priority clients

A short list of the clients you will help before year-end.

02

One conversation

One buyer or seller conversation you will schedule.

03

A follow-up plan

Clear next steps that run through December 31.

BRING THREE THINGS

One active buyer, one potential seller and one holiday objection you are hearing.

TODAY'S PLAN

What we are covering today

Set the purpose	Name one client or lead you want to help.
Seller conversations	Practice an invitation and answer "I'll wait until January."
Buyer conversations	Practice an invitation and answer "after the holidays."
Holiday listing tips	Photos before decorations and a replace-the-photos plan.
Residency and Amendment 3	What changed, who may benefit, no promised results.
Marketing and commitments	One personal outreach, and when you will do it.

SELLER CONVERSATIONS

Start with the seller's goals

PRACTICE THE INVITATION

"You mentioned a move may be coming up. Would it be useful to look at what selling during the holidays could involve, alongside waiting until January? We can compare likely competition, recent neighborhood sales, preparation time, and your preferred move date before you decide."

USE VISITING FAMILY AS AN INVITATION

"If you have friends or family visiting who are curious about the area, I'd be glad to show them around or answer questions. And if selling is on your mind, we can also map out a plan that fits your timing."

SELLER OBJECTION

I’ll wait until January.

WHEN THEY SAY

“Let’s wait until January.”

YOU CAN ANSWER

“That may be the right choice. Could we compare the two timelines first? Between now and December 31, fewer homes are coming to market, so there is less new competition. In January, many more sellers list. With plenty of homes already for sale, let’s look at the local numbers together and decide with the tradeoffs in front of you.”

Check current local inventory and recent sales before you make this case.

MORE SELLER OBJECTIONS

Keep the first step small

“THE HOLIDAYS ARE TOO BUSY.”

“I understand. We can keep the first step small: a brief pricing and preparation conversation, with no commitment to list. If the timing doesn’t work, we’ll plan for later.”

“I DON’T WANT PEOPLE COMING THROUGH MY HOME.”

“That’s a reasonable concern. We can talk through your comfort level, showing schedule, privacy, and whether a later launch makes more sense. You set the limits.”

BUYER CONVERSATIONS

Start with the buyer's timeline

PRACTICE THE INVITATION

"If you found a home that fit your needs and budget, would you be ready to consider it before year-end, or are you mainly gathering information? I can help you compare the costs, timing, and tradeoffs without assuming you need to buy now."

FOR VISITING OR RELOCATING BUYERS

"If you'll be in Florida over the holidays, we can use the visit to explore neighborhoods and get a realistic sense of prices, commute, and day-to-day life. We can also speak with a lender early if you want to understand your options."

BUYER OBJECTION

I’ll wait until after the holidays.

WHEN THEY SAY

“I’ll wait until after the holidays.”

YOU CAN ANSWER

“That’s an option. Many sellers have a goal of selling by year-end so they can start the new year in their next home, and that can make them more motivated to reach an agreement now. Would it help to see which homes are available and what a year-end offer could look like?”

SUGGESTIONS

- Ask listing agents about the seller’s timeline and goals.
- Offer flexible closing or move-out dates.
- Compare terms, not only price.
- Keep it honest. Never pressure the buyer.

MORE BUYER OBJECTIONS

Separate the home decision from the tax decision

“I’M WORRIED ABOUT RATES OR PRICES.”

“Those are real considerations. I can help you compare homes and timing, and a lender can explain payment scenarios. We shouldn’t assume rates or prices will move in your favor, so let’s focus on what works for your budget and plans today.”

“I’M NOT SURE FLORIDA IS PERMANENT.”

“Then let’s separate the home decision from any tax decision. We can explore whether buying makes sense for your plans, and you can confirm residency and tax questions with the county property appraiser or a qualified tax professional.”

HOLIDAY LISTINGS

Tips for listings taken during the holidays

PHOTOS

Photos first

Photograph the home before holiday decorations go up.

DÉCOR

Keep it light and neutral

Show the home, not the holiday. Simple, minimal décor.

SHOWINGS

Be flexible

Offer evening, weekend and virtual walkthroughs around family plans.

Avoid holiday-decorated listing photos

1

Shoot first

Schedule photos before the decorations go up, ideally before the listing goes live.

2

Tone it down

If décor is already up, ask the seller to remove or minimize it for the shoot.

3

Reshoot later

If that is not possible, reshoot as soon as the decorations come down.

4

Replace everywhere

Swap the new photos into the MLS and all marketing the same day.

Marketing includes social posts, flyers, your website and virtual tours.

FLORIDA AMENDMENT 3

How Amendment 3 can benefit this holiday

NON-SCHOOL TAXES

Bigger homestead exemption

$150,000 for 2027 and $250,000 for 2028, with inflation adjustments after that.

NOT EVERYTHING CHANGES

Some bills stay the same

School taxes and flat non-ad valorem charges are not eliminated. Savings vary by property.

NEW RESIDENTS

A residency-related phase-in

Some new Florida residents get a phase-in. Confirm how it applies with the county property appraiser.

TIMING

Starts in 2027

Approved in November 2026. Takes effect January 1, 2027. Some details may need legislation.

FLORIDA AMENDMENT 3

Explaining December 31 carefully

SAY IT THIS WAY

“If you’re genuinely moving your permanent home to Florida, December 31, 2026 may matter under the new amendment’s residency rules. Buying a property alone does not necessarily establish Florida residency or qualify it for homestead. Let’s connect you with the county property appraiser or a tax professional to confirm what applies to you.”

AVOID SAYING

- ⚠ Every out-of-state buyer must buy by December 31.
- ⚠ Buying alone secures the benefit.
- ⚠ Homestead starts the day you close.
- ⚠ A specific tax saving is guaranteed.

FLORIDA AMENDMENT 3

Residency, ownership and homestead are separate steps

1

Own and live in it

A buyer generally must own and occupy the home as a permanent residence as of January 1.

2

Apply on time

Apply with the county property appraiser by the filing deadline, commonly March 1.

3

Confirm local rules

Check the current county rules and how Amendment 3's residency provisions apply.

Buying a property alone does not establish Florida residency.

CAN'T CLOSE BY DECEMBER 31?

How an out-of-state buyer can establish Florida residency

1

Live in Florida by Dec 31

Rent, or live with family or friends. No lease needed, but Florida must be the real permanent home.

2

Document the move

Declaration of domicile, Florida license, voter and vehicle registration, mail and banking.

3

Close and move in

Buy after December 31 and occupy the home as the permanent residence.

4

Apply for homestead

Own and occupy as of January 1, then apply with the county by about March 1.

Closing after January 1 usually means homestead starts the following tax year. Confirm with the county property appraiser.

MARKETING AND FOLLOW-UP

Choose one personal outreach per client

MARKET UPDATE

“Would a quick neighborhood update help with your planning?”

HOLIDAY VISIT

“Want to use your holiday visit to compare a few areas?”

JANUARY SELLER

“Would you like a sale-preparation checklist, even if you’re targeting January?”

LENDER OR COUNTY

“Would it help to connect with a lender or county office for answers to your questions?”

Keep it specific. Follow up when promised and record their preferred timing and next step.

DISCUSSION

Share a real client scenario

- Which client will you help first before year-end?
- Which holiday objection is hardest for you to answer?
- How will you explain December 31 without promising a result?

AGENT COMMITMENT

Complete this sentence out loud

“By [date], I’ll contact [client] to help them compare [specific options], and our next step will be [specific action].”
